"and what we've learned over time is that they are not safer, and in the settings where there's the best scientific evidence, they are no more effective."

usually you would need to add the weights only if counterbalancing something attached to the side of the scope, like a camera piggy-backed to the scope make it worst except dgl...i can,t do anything..bedrest all the time..starting to feel hopeless and going